13 355 Platform

TT

A detailed reproduction of the cast iron pillars often found at stations along the Berlin S-Bahn railway gives this model an authentic look. The realistic arched roof over the platform, which in real life protects passengers from the rain, adds an extra layer of authenticity. The stairway with laser-cut cardboard railings is optional. The platform can be extended by connecting a second identical platform or Product No. 43 688, Platform without roof.

Platform height 10 mm, track centre spacing 86 mm; for tracks with ballast, compensate height with substructure.

Available from 07/2024

41 685 Loader T172

H0

Kit. The T172 was built in 1961–67. A further development of the T170, it came with a 17 hp motor, two-speed gearbox, a new hydraulically operated boom constructed of sheet metal and dual tyres on the rear axle. The kit is intricately printed with light green paintwork to create a true-to-life model. Authentic scenes can be recreated with the steerable front axle, the 360° rotatable superstructure and the adjustable boom, which can be equipped with a hook, rake grapple or clamshell bucket.

It can even be loaded onto a flat car, using the single tyres included on the drive axle. Detailed decoration: tow bar and warning stripes on the crane superstructure. Highly detailed model
